

AGREEMENT ON MCKENZIE BILL SEEMS NEAR

LETTER CANCELLING
ENGAGEMENT READ

Candler Is Alleged to Written Woman of
Rumors He Heard

BOTH PRINCIPALS
IN COURTROOM

Detectives Maintaining Order Under Judge's
Direction

(Associated Press)
ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 31—With both principals on hand and the chamber
so crowded many persons were forced to the corridors, the trial of Mrs. De Bouchel's $500,000 suit for alleged breach of promise against Asa G.
Candler, Sr., was resumed today in United States court here with the reading of additional letters alleged to have been written the New Orleans
woman by the Atlanta capitalist during their engagement.

Mr. Candler, accompanied by his son, Asa G. Candler, Jr., arrived at the hour of the trial to begin. She was attended by the same group of friends who were with her yesterday.
A special group of detectives maintained order, under the direction of Federal Judge Samuel M. Sibley, who is presiding.

Letters read this morning included
that of September 15, 1922, which is alleged to have broken the engagement.
Thirteen letters were read yesterday
and Mrs. DeBouchel's counsel said that the 19 introduced in the records were representative of letters written almost daily over a period of several months.

The letter of Mrs. DeBouchel from
Mr. Candler, addressed to Reno, Nev., under date of September 15, begins
without salutation and was as follows:
"It almost killed me to have to write you this morning. I am in great state of perplexity. Information has just been brought to me from sources
entitled to belief that here are two men, living in Atlanta, who claim to have, in times gone by, visited you,
by your invitation, at night in your room in a hotel in this city. To marry
you with these reports in force could not in any case be right or fair to either of us, even though they be untrue. Your reputation in Atlanta would be so painfully affected thereby as to make me unwilling to bring you here
and have you subjected to slights by people you will have to meet. To carry you elsewhere would not avoid this treatment. The situation is horrible to handle. I must and will be kind and air to you. We must and will not do that which, when done,
cannot be undone.

"No man should marry any lady if he had doubts that such marriage
could not be happy for both parties.
It is far better to realize that fact before than after marriage. I know you so well and esteem you so highly
that until I hear from you, I am sure you will agree that we should not, in justice to each of us, go further now.
I hope you will promptly reply to this in the same spirit that it is written. Nothing has ever so disheartened me as this. I wooed you and won you because I loved you. My heart is yet pure and true. I will not subject
you, unjustly to rudeness and undeserved affront. Please think kindly of me, as I now an evermore will of
you. Sincerely, Asa G. Candler."

A letter on September 30, alleged to have been written by Mr. Candler,
without salutation, stated as follows:

"As promised I am doing my best
to get an actual truth of the statements made to me, that the reference
was made to in my letter of September 15. I have been told by a citizen in Atlanta that while you were a guest at the Piedmont hotel during the reunion convention of the U. C. V., he saw you in a room, at east two other ladies being also in that room. That afternoon he saw you alone in the hall or corridor of that hotel where he gave you his telephone number.
Later you telephoned him you were alone in your room, asking him to call. He declined, saying the hotel was very carefully policed and he did not visit ladies in their rooms at hotels.
You assured him that it would be perfectly satisfactory that he visit you.
He did not go. You gave him your home telephone, invited him to visit

APPRAISERS TO SIT
IN ROAD-LAND CASE

The case of Morgan County versus Charles Oden, wherein Attorney John R. Sample in behalf of Mr. Oden, sought to stay the action of the Morgan county board of revenue in taking a certain strip of land belonging to Oden for public road purposes terminated at the court house late Wednesday.

The case was tried before probate Judge Lovick P. Troup, who held that all he had jurisdiction to do in the case was to appoint the appraisers to value the land sought to be condemned.

In concluding the hearing Judge Troup, requested that opposing attorneys in the case, agree on the appraisers and report to him later. The judge added that in case the attorneys
did not recommend appraisers that he would name them within a few days.

The only witness called was M. S.
Bingham, Morgan County road engineer.

Charles Oden did not attend the trial. He was represented by John R.
Sample and Morgan County was represented by Attorney A. J. Harris.

It was appointed out by one official that after the appraisers to be appointed rendered their decision as to the value of the strip of land sought
by the Morgan County board of revenue,
final decision will be made by
Charles Oden as to his future course.

Matlock Sale of Interest in N. Y.

The five cent sale, on suits and overcoats recently advertised in The Daily
by Matlock's cash store, has aroused interest in New York and today Mr.
Matlock received the following letter
from W. L. Lightfoot, of the Daily News Record.

Matlock's, Albany, Ala.
Gentlemen—

I understand that a recent sale
conducted by you brought out good response, the sale in question being an offering of overcoats and shoes.
With a second suit or overcoat for five cents.

If you can give some real dope on the plan, and to what extent it boosted
business, and if you believe the idea profitable, I can use the idea in the store promotion department of our publication.

Very truly,
W. L. Lightfoot,

BALK AT FORCING
DENBY RESIGNATION

Senate Discusses the Trammell Request;
Gets Nowhere

RESOLUTION OF
WALSH STILL UP

Lodge Leads Fight to Prevent Action on Resignation

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—The Walsh resolution, directing the president to proceed with suits to annul the Donhey and Sinclair oil leases, was adopted today by the senate. Under the agreement proposed by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, democratic leader, consideration of the resolution
asking for the resignation of Secretary Denby will be in order after the vote on the Walsh measure.

Final action was taken after all efforts to modify the language of the resolution, so as to eliminate direct charges that the leases were entered into without authority and in violation of the law, had been voted down.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—President
Coolidge conferred today with Senator Walsh, democrat of Montana, with respect to the naval oil leases. Mr.
Walsh went to the white house on the invitation of the executive and so far as it is known, it was the first time
he had been consulted by Mr. Coolidge on the subject.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—A move
to attach the Robinson resolution calling for the resignation of Secretary
Denby to the Walsh oil lease annulment measure, was made today immediately after the senate convened.

The measure was fostered by Senator Trammell, of Florida, democrat.

Immediate opposition was voiced by Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, the republican leader, who declared he would resist, very strongly, such a declaration by congress. There is only one way the legislative branch could remove a cabinet officer, he said, and that was by impeachment.

Senator Lodge described the Trammell proposal as 'an attempt to force the hands of the president in the exercise of discretion, which is his alone.
He agreed that Secretary Denby should have resisted efforts made to influence him to agree to the transfer of the oil territory, and added:

"I do not approve of the public statement which the secretary of the navy made day before yesterday. There is no evidence in the hearings, or elsewhere, however, which show in any way that he, Secretary Denby, is other than an honest man, however mistaken and however wrong he was.
There is no proof that would stand
a moment in any court that he was guilty
of anything more than a very mistaken judgement, lack of competency,
if you choose to call it so."

Senator Trammell withdrew his amendment after several other members had expressed the conviction it would delay action on the Walsh resolution.

Writer Praises the Kiwanis Edition

"A thousand thanks for having sent me the Kiwanis number of the local paper. I have read the issue from cover to cover, and enjoyed every bit of it,"
wrote C. L. Ridley Nichol, agency
supervisor of the Standard Accident Insurance Company, a frequent visitor to Decatur. Mr. Nichol has been a frequent guest of the Morgan Kiwanis Club. The letter was addressed to J. R. Daniell, who was one of the editors of the special Kiwanis edition.

Mr. Daniell and many other Kiwanians have received similar letters to the one of Mr. Nichol all of them praising the Daily's special Kiwanis edition.

'23 INCOME TAX CUT
THOUGHT PRACTICAL

Mellon Says the Step
Would Entail No
Difficulties

REBATES IN CASH
WILL BE SMALL

Plan Would Put Cuts
in Taxes in Effect
During This Year

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—Secretary
Mellon regards as practical and feasible the plan of republican members of the house ways and means committee to make the proposed income tax reduction effective on the 1923 payments, which tax payers will remit to the government, beginning January 15. He believes the step would entail
no difficulties on the treasury.

Under the optional plan of paying taxes in four installments, probably 90 per cent of the tax payers take advantage of the privilege of retaining moneys that might, otherwise, be turned into the treasury in a jump
sum on the first tax paying day.

The mechanics of dealing with a retroactive reduction, in Mr. Mellon's opinion, would be largely a paper transaction, consisting of the placing
by the treasury of a credit to the tax payer on future installments.

Little cash rebate, he believed, would be involved. The treasury has had no opportunity to estimate the decrease in the total government income, resulting from the proposed change, but some officials made the guess today
it would range around $200,000,000
on payments this year if the 26 per cent reduction all along the line on tax rates is agreed upon, as suggested in
the ways and means committee.

MISSION WORKER
WILL SPEAK HERE

Miss Mary E. Brauer of the Missouri Synod of the Lutheran church,
will make an address at St. Paul's Evangelical church of Albany on Sunday at 7:30 o'clock p. m.

Miss Brauer who is a returned missionary, will speak on "China". She has been appointed by the Walter League, and by the board of Foreign Missions of the Lutheran church, to tour "The Dixie District" of the League. Miss Brauer will present in an special manner the claims of Christian education in China. In endorsing the movement of his church to erect suitable schools in China, Rev. Karl Hofman, pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical church said: "It is impossible to invest our money and our prayers in any soul saving enterprise that holds out more hope for the future, than
the school building program now before our church in China, where 400-000,000 people are living without the gospel light."

G. Wayland, former city commissioner

in the so-called probe suit instituted
at the instance of the board of commerce and which suits made grave
charges against the city commissioners
and employees.

PLANS ACCEPTED
FOR AUDITORIUM

Y. M. C. A. Will Erect
an Annex to Present
Structure

CHICAGO MAN IS
'GUEST OF HONOR

Banquet Last Night to
F. M. N. Richardson
and Walter Stallings

The "Goodfellowship Class" of the Central Methodist church served a dinner Wednesday evening at the Railroad Y. M. C. A. to the board of directors of the Association acting State "Y" secretary, Walter S. Stallings of Birmingham and Railroad "Y" Secretary F. M. Richardson of Chicago.

The gathering was the occasion of the close of the financial year of the Association and Executive Secretary
C. J. Randolph, rendered his annual report, which at his request, together with all accounts and bills for the past year were entrusted to W. A.
Curry the well known accountant, Mr.
Curry agreeing to make an audit of the entire financial transactions of the association for the year 1923.

The annual budget recommended by Secretary Randolph was approved
by the board of directors, two items of which was the sum of $3,000 set aside for the proposed new auditorium and gymnasium and the amount of the salary of a boy's work Secretary for the present year.

Plans were accepted for the new building, which showed it will extend from the present main building to the property line of the Association's lots
on the east side.

The building will be 60x39 feet and its main floor will be on a level with the present floor of the association
lobby.

The auditorium-gymnasium will be 35 feet high from floor to roof. The boy's work secretary Robert D. Edwards now employed by the Atlanta
Y. M. C. A. in its boy's work department is expected here Friday to take charge of the boy's work of the local association.

Visitors Make Addresses.

The principal addresses of Wednesday evening were made by Messrs.
Stallings and Richardson. Mr. Stallings reported the action of the recent constitutional International Y. M. C. A. convention, which showed that no longer will the so-called "International Committee" direct the Association's activities in all lands, but that a "council" made up on the basis of two laymen and one employed officer for every 4,000 members, will take the place of the "international committee".
In his address Mr. Richardson brought greetings from many associations,
especially the railroad Y. M. C. A.'s. In speaking of the large growth of the "Y" movement in recent years Mr.
Richardson said in part:

"About 57 per cent of the world's
"Y" members, 69 per cent of the "Y"
employed officers, 71 per cent of the Y activities, and 78 per cent of the Y property and expenditures of all of the Y's of the world are found in the United States and Canada. Here, then,
is one measure of North America's obligation in the foreign lands. This movement—born in London in 1844 and appearing in North America in 1851—
has developed here to such an extent that its growth of the last twelve
year exceeds its growth of the preceding 61 years combined. Some of its features or items have doubled in the past eight years."

"The $11,980,600 of contributions
for the work in North America is 25.3 per cent of the total operating expenditures and more than double the similar amount of five years ago. These contributions are equivalent to $.26 per capita of the Y population. In 1900 such contributions were about 52 per cent of the total operating expenditures; in 1910, 34 per cent; in 1915, 29 per cent; in 1921, 23.3 per cent; in 1923, 25.3 per cent."

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 31—
Word reported here is to the effect
that the Chicago White Sox will train
here in 1925, following the announcement that the Philadelphia Athletics
would not return after this season.

plant of the Decatur Cor-

nevolent hospital, being removed a short time after-

Little Boy Hurt
In Auto Accident

Carl Poole, little son of Deputy Sheriff Frank Poole was resting well
today following some bruises he received Wednesday when an automobile driven by G. W. Yates, struck the boy
the accident occurring on 9th street,
South, Albany.

It is said Mr. Yates was driving over Ninth street beyond the South-side Baptist church toward the Somerville road, when the child was crossing the street and blew his auto horn
when all of a sudden the child decided to recross the street. By making a sudden turn and driving into the curb, with great damage to his car
Mr. Yates averted what promised to be a very serious accident. His car was insured.

ADOPT AMENDMENT,
MAY "RECONSIDER"

Would Put the Lease
Under Provisions of Water Power Act

EXTENDS FOR 100 YEARS, HOWEVER

Executive Session by House Committee
During Morning

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—Henry Ford's offer for Muscle Shoals would be placed under the federal waterpower act, with the exception that the lease would run for 100 years, instead of 50, under an agreement made today
to the McKenzie bill, at an executive session of the house military affairs committee.

Following the adoption of this amendment, which was proposed by Representative Wurdach, republican
Texas, a move was made by Representative James, republican, Michigan,
to reconsider the amendment, when the
committee reconvenes tomorrow.

The amendment offered yesterday
to the McKenzie bill, which authorizes acceptance of the Ford, was defeated by a 13 to 7 vote, it was said. This amendment would have placed the Detroit Manufacturer's proposal under the federal waterpower act and limit
the lease to 50 years.

participating in the lynching of William Baird, a miner, near Jasper in 1921. He is the third member of that command to be tried on the same charge.

Five others are under indictment.
The case of Joseph Key was given to the jury late yesterday and deliberations are still in progress. The

Agricultural Work
Explained by Moore

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 31—
The organization and work of the department of agriculture and industries
of Alabama is now being explained by J. M. Moore, commissioner in answer to numerous requests reaching
him from public and high school students throughout Alabama for information of this kind.

"Under the law the commissioner of agriculture and industries is that chief executive officer and chairman of the state board of agriculture
which represents the public and is responsible for proper execution of the law," says Mr. Moore. "This plan was created by the agricultural code
which was passed by the recent legislature, and which is the best set of agricultural laws enacted by any state."

Naming specific laws in the code,
Mr. Moore referred to those pertaining to fertilizer, fruit trees, nursery stocks, foods, feed, drug seed, in-secticides, fungicides, eggs, and also those pertaining to containers for agricultural products. "It is the duty of the department, and of the state board,
to enforce these laws," added Mr.
Moore.

In naming the advantages Mr. Moore said that the work of the department
affects not only farmers but the public. Producers, manufacturers, dealers and consumers are all protected and benefitted by the department which comes in contact with all kinds of problems in its work which is essentially regulatory.

At present the department is divided into four divisions and one subdivision. They are: agricultural chemistry, markets, clerical and records,
and plant industry with a sub-division
for citrus fruit.

BUILDERS AND BUILDINGS ARE NOW IN BIG DEMAND

"It is true," says a well known writer, "that the United States is now in the throes of the biggest building era in its history and is faced by an acute shortage of skilled labor; that wages for bricklayers run from eleven dollars to fifteen dollars a day; that there are only five thousand tile-setters in the entire country; that what is true of the demand for men in these trades and their high wages, is likewise true of many other building and allied trades; and that this is not a temporary condition, but one which may last years."

Two conclusions among many others may be reached from the quotation used: there is not apt to be any fall in the prices of building materials and the building trades offer large rewards to skilled workers.

If any are halting between two opinions as to whether to seek "white collar" jobs or jobs in the building trades, with wages as quoted above, it would seem but one answer would be possible, namely, the thing to do is to learn to lay bricks and to set tiles.

FIRST BATH TUB BUILT IN UNITED STATES WAS IN 1842

Recently The Daily Times had occasion to call attention to the excitement and consternation that prevailed when first efforts were put forth to introduce the bath tub. That the use of this very necessary convenience, as recognized today, is still a little out of line with the practice of some, judging from the facial expressions, or we should better say appearances—it is interesting to know that the first bath tub in the United States was built in Cincinnati and installed in a home in that city in 1842. The bath tub was made of mahogany, lined with sheet lead, and its far-seeing owner proudly exhibited it at a Christmas party.

The next day the newspapers in Cincinnati denounced it in no uncertain terms as a luxurious and undemocratic vanity.

Then along came the medical men and solemnly pronounced it a menace to health.

In 1842 Philadelphia undertook to prohibit by public ordinance bathing between November 21 and March 15.

Boston, in 1845, made bathing unlawful except when prescribed by a physician, and Virginia was so wrought up that she taxed bath tubs $30 a year.

With all the above opposition against it, the bath tub today has become a vital necessity in our homes.—Huntsville Daily Times.

FACES HIS PHANTOM JUDGES

For months Nikolai Lenine had been no more than a hollow shell. Sick, worn and discouraged, the shadow of defeat over him, paralysis had silenced his tongue and deadened his limbs.

The brain that shaped and loosed the Red Blight on the world was grouping in the dusk. Moscow was waiting for Lenine to go. He had become no more than a faded symbol. Trotzky, Kaminex, Kalinin, Zinoviev—a power-hungry horde of the ambitious waited for him to go, intriguing for his place before it was empty.

When he came to die, this chief of the revolution and master of 150,000,000 Russians went as does the stricken wolf, dying alone and aloof from the pack. He was lonelier than he had been in his London garret or his cellar in Geneva. It was as if a curse had been laid upon him, dooming him to go slowly, watching his death draw nigh, unable to stir foot or hands to meet it.

He who was born Vladimir Ulianoff had come to the very entrance of life. He was the Judas of the real Russian revolution. His name is a byword and a hissing.

Every sorrow that has fallen on the world since its beginning fell upon Russia with his coming. His outriders were the Four Horsemen. He found Russia a nation and left it a fallow field, furrowed with graves and flecked with blood.

Lenine had strength. That very strength was a curse to Russia. He was clear-eyed. How then, could his dying vision fail to glimpse the dark path down which he had driven Russia?

If the phantoms of Russia's dead might but gather to receive the ghost of Lenine!

He should stand in the center of an amphitheater as vast as Russia. On one side should be amassed the wraiths of the Red Wrath's victims; peasants, servants, aristocrats, judges, priests, soldiers and workers, they with their women, children, aged and crippled. They would come up from their shallow, pitiful graves and rise from the ooze, from wells, pools and pits and the sickly vaults of the Chekha.

On the other side should gather the dead of Famine and Pestilence—the simple villages and peasants, the timid, mystical Slav souls who perished because of the hunger and plague that followed Lenine and his savage dreamers. For these also are his victims.

In a silence, then, as deep as eternity, the dead eyes of those slain millions should look down upon Lenine. In the damp, cold breath blowing from a land of graves, in the phosphorescent glow of decay flickering over the massed hosts of the dead, Lenine should stand in the day of his judgment.

The ex-Kaiser has his apologists, defenders and wreath-bearers. Lenine will have his. Legends and little tales will be told of his human goodness; but the good that was in him will be interred with his bones. The mark he leaves on the world is a terrible scar. The evil he has done will live after him.

He has turned from Karl Marx and the visions of world revolution to explore the shadows and the dust. Nikolai Lenine will be remembered as Attila, Alaric and Tamerlane are remembered. He was another Scourge of God.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.—Tuscaloosa News.

GETTING OVER HARD PLACES—INCLUDING ELECTION YEARS

The American people have a way of meeting crises that is admirable. They have a way of getting together and sticking together when necessary, that has often surprised the world. A notable ease in point, when Americans stood together and fought together was during their part in the World war. More than one foreign ruler, noting the way the Americans "scrap" among themselves, and how they differ with each other on every imaginable subject, believed and taught their subjects that ours was not really a nation of people, but just a vast assembly of individuals, and that Americans would not fight in the World war. The seriousness of the mistake they made concerning the "oneness" of Americans was seen by the rulers in question as they saw millions of American soldiers cross the ocean to fight in the great war "to victory or death."

At this time many are speaking about the apparently endless wrangle now being staged in connection with the presidential elections now less than a year off. Many are disturbed lest the affairs of the nation suffer between now and November, and so they may; but no lasting harm is being done the nation by the political wranglers of its people.

The nation has come safely through harder times in the last few years than it will be called upon to pass through in the next eleven months. Business conditions are at least sound, if not just the best in the world. American money is highly valued throughout the world and American credit is as good as the best the world around.

There is no large contingent of the American people so widely separated from the main body of the people, and the truth of this assertion will be amply proven should some great occasion demand patriotic thoughts and actions on the part of all the people. Americans are as capable and willing to unite in a crisis as they ever were. They are as ready to help each other over hard places as they ever were.

Henry Sinclair is reported to have wired the investigation committee whose members want him: "Business before testimony." But such sauciness is safe, considering the distance the speaker was from Washington.

Old Man Winter was successful this year—so far at least.

STOCK MARKET HAS GONE WILD

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Jan. 31—One of the wildest stock market sessions in recent years took place Tuesday morning when thousands of buying orders poured onto the floor of the exchange as a result of declaration and an extra dividend of 50 cents on the common stock of the United States Steel Corporation, initial gains of active issues, ranging from one to six points.

The first sale of United States Steel common, which was not required for several minutes because of accumulation of orders, was 7,000 shares at 106, or two and three quarters above yesterday's close.

Good-bye Stained Teeth

New Safe Treatment Bleaches Dark Teeth in Three Minutes

Dentists have discovered a new safe treatment which bleaches stains from teeth, giving yellow, discolored teeth a beautiful flashing whiteness. It is called Bleachodent Combination, and consists of a remarkable liquid which cures or softens the stains—and a new kind of paste, which instantly removes the softened stains, and prevents new stains from forming. Simply brush the teeth with a few drops of the liquid—then use the paste—and even the duldest teeth are quickly whitened. Tobacco stains disappear after first few applications. Bleachodent Combination was first made for children's teeth to avoid the use of harsh gritty pastes which are so harmful to children's soft sensitive teeth. While Bleachodent Combination will instantly remove surface stains, do not expect it to remove stains caused by silver fillings, as these are below the enamel, and Bleachodent Combination is not intended to act on the enamel in any way. Fine for the gums. Bleachodent Combination is widely used and recommended. Costs just a few cents, and money back if not delighted. SWEDEN SEEKS REDUCTION IN NATIONAL DEFENSE COST

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 31—Swedish politicians are busily engaged in the solution of the problem of national defense, which is the weightiest before the country. "What Are You Going to Do About It?"

MOTHER GRAHAM'S explosive comment that not one of her son-in-law's family had spoken to him for fifteen years, before his recent tragic death, interrupted the reading of the letter from the attorney for the Harrison family only for a second or two. Characteristically, it was my mother-in-law herself who first spoke. Leaning forward in her chair she spoke irritably to Lillian.

"Well, Mrs. Underwood, what are you waiting for?" she demanded. "Let us hear the rest of this precious epistle. Where did you stop?"

"Are there keeping them without having consulted us as to our wishes in the matter," Lillian repeated composedly.

"Fat chance they have of having their wishes consulted," Dickie murmured benignly. "I don't suppose they know the names of one of the children."

"Richard," his mother commanded with icy dignity, "see that you do not interrupt again."

"Therefore," Lillian went on, "we are notifying you now that whereas the mother's death was prior to the father's, the law gives to the father's family the guardianship of the children and the administration of the estate, provided no will be left."

There is no record of any will, and we have been informed that though a strenuous and most inhuman effort was made at the hospital to have the dying man sign a will, it was prevented by his death.

No Trouble Wanted!

"We do not wish any unnecessary trouble," Lillian's somewhat throaty contralto continued, "and will make none if the children are at once restored to our custody. They will be provided with good homes. Each of three brothers will take a boy, while the girl will be given a home with her aunt. We will wait five days for the arrival of the children. If they are not here in that time we shall put the machinery of the law in motion. Yours very truly,

"JOSEPH LOBBELL,"
"Attorney at Law."

"For the family of William Harrison."

"Their signatures are all appended," said Lillian, "but it will take me a minute or two to decipher them."

"Don't wait for them," Mother

Graham commanded. "We haven't time. It's enough to have this rigmarole handed us. What do you make of it, anyway?"

She addressed the group as a whole, but it was Dickie who answered.

"It's like to lamp this Lobdell bird," he said with a chuckle. "Did you ever hear such a scream as that screech is? Can't you just see him, a dried-up little old weasel from one of those little Pennsylvania towns?"

"Who may not know much about the writing of a legal epistle," Lillian struck in, "but who, nevertheless, may be able to tie you all up in double bow knots, if you don't get ahead of him."

The Appeal to Harriet.

"Spoken like the sensible woman you are," my mother-in-law commented. "Richard, if you can't do anything but make ridiculous comments, leave the room."

"Oh, I'll be good," he promised, moving to a place behind his mother, where he put me into an agony of apprehension for the control of my laughter muscles by the wry grimaces he made at me.

"See to it that you are," Mother Graham said grimly, and then she turned to her daughter. "Harriet, Haven't you anything to say?"

At the words every pair of eyes in the room turned on Harriet Braithwaite, and we saw a stately woman trying hard to crush the emotion which threatened to cast her dignity and self-control to the winds. Her face was working, and at her mother's question she threw out her arms with a sound in her throat as if she were choking. Her husband started toward her, but she waved him back imperatively.

"Oh, Oh!" she gasped. "To think there can be such people in the world! Do you see what they are planning—to separate those children—each one in a different home—I mean house—there is no such thing as a home in that family. They would never know love, they would never know pleasure or any birthright of childhood. Work and just as little schooling as the law would permit—that would be the lot of each one of them."

She stopped chokingly, and her mother's voice struck in, coolly, tantalizingly insistent.

"Well," she said, "what are you going to do about it?"

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am a girl in my teens and considered good looking, but very bashful with young men. Can you advise me of some way in which I can overcome my bashfulness and be attractive to men?

BASHFUL ANN.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: Forget about yourself and your good looks, my dear, and try to make yourself interesting to young men by being well-informed and interested in what others are doing. Soon you will overcome your bashfulness if you do this.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young man twenty-two years of age. I am desperately in love with a certain young lady whom I have known for nearly four years. I have been going with her steadily for over one year. We have been planning to get married as soon as I am in a position to do so. I have been engaged for three months. Do you think a girl eighteen years old is too young to get married if she knows absolutely that she has found the right man?

Do you think she should give up other friends for him if she is engaged?

X. R. V.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: Eighteen is rather young to be married, but circumstances often alter cases, my friend.

It is customary for a girl to give up other young men if she is engaged.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of eighteen, and have been going with a young man twenty-four years of age. He wishes to marry me, but I do not love him enough to marry him. My mother and father seem to think it is perfectly all right for me to do so. I told Mother I did not love him enough to get married, and she said I will learn to love him. But I have tried so hard and it seems so impossible. He is a wonderful man. I didn't think I could make him happy. He seems to think I could.

I think if I love a man enough to marry him I could make him happy. But I am afraid I could not in this man's case.

I do not know what to do or say.

MISS LOVELY: You are still very young, my dear. I suggest that you have an affectionate talk with your parents and ask to wait a few years before considering marriage seriously.

I am sure they do not wish you to marry a man whom you do not love.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her, in care of this office.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

Significant Incidents in the Lives of Famous Women

By MARK STUYVESANT

An American Woman Who Married an Indian Chief.

IN 1776 in the Wyoming Valley in Pennsylvania through which the Susquehanna River flows, there lived a Quaker by the name of Slocum with his wife and children.

Although the Indians were the terror of this part of the colony, the Slocum family were not in danger of their marauding attacks, because Mr. Slocum was known as a friend of the red men and had shown them many kindnesses.

But unfortunately one of his grown-up sons, without his father's knowledge, had taken part in a fight against the Indians.

The Indians swore vengeance on the Slocum family and wreaked it in the most cruel manner. For they not only scalped a young son of the family, but captured their little girl, Frances, five years old, while Mrs. Slocum was trying to rescue her boy from the savagery.

Although this was within a very short distance from the Wilkesbarre Fort and the alarm was spread at

near a fort and that her father was a friend.

Although at that time a journey to Indiana was a tremendous undertaking, the brothers set out at once. They arrived at Logansport and communicated with the gentleman who had written the letter, who said he would bring the woman to them.

They waited, and in a few hours an old woman came riding into town on a splendid horse. They exchanged reminiscences, but the woman was not convinced until they recalled an accident in their father's workshop where Frances had had her finger injured. At this the woman looked at her hand. There was the scar. She fell into her brother's arms, while the tears streamed down their cheeks.

Frances had been so happy with the Indians, and had received such good and kind treatment at their hands, that she had refrained from ever making any inquiries as to her origin.

She had been brought up in the once, no trace of the Indians with the little girl could be found.

Soon after this Mrs. Slocum's husband was murdered by the Indians. Her grief over her lost child and her murdered husband seemed more than she could bear.

In desperation her sons, who were now grown to manhood, determined to go in search of their sister. Canada was now open to the Pennsylvania, for that former colony was now one of the thirteen States of the new republic of the United States of America.

So the young men traveled even across the Canadian border in search of their kidnapped sister, visiting every Indian settlement and trying in vain to find some trace of the lost girl.

Finally a girl was found who had been brought from "Yonking," as that part of the country was then called. But neither Mrs. Slocum nor the girl felt upon the dramatic meeting that they were mother and daughter, although the poor woman insisted that her daughter was still alive.

One morning, fifty-nine years after Frances' abduction, while one of the brothers was reading the Lancaster Intelligencer, published in the town of that name, he came across a letter from a man in Logansport, Ind., in which he stated that there was aged white woman, living there with the Indians who said she had been carried away from the Susquehanna River, somewhere tribe as an adopted daughter, and when she grew to young womanhood had married a young chief and ruled as a queen among his people.

With great joy did Frances Slocum invite her newly-found brothers to her home in the country, where they were astounded at the comfort in which she lived, and at the extent of her possessions not only in land, but in horses and cattle.

Frances was entirely satisfied with her lot and was happy in her home with her family, so she declined the offer to be taken home to Pennsylvania. However, before her death her older brother, with her nieces and nephews, made several visits to his chieftainess-sister in the wilds of Indiana, where she entertained them with affectionate hospitality.

Frances Slocum lived on happily with her adopted race until she was a very old woman, entirely unconscious that she was living a life the history of which comes down with the greatest interest, and ranks her as a heroine of Colonial days.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

Arranging for the St. Valentine's Party.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY is just the time for a dinner dance for the debutante daughter and her friends. There are many fascinating favors that can be used and many of them can be made at home. Of course, hearts and arrows, cupids and flowers all figure in the general decorative scheme of things.

In decorating the house use garlands of similar or other green vines and space little red paper hearts, stuck with silver arrows, along the garlands. Cover bulbs or shades with the hearts grouped in wreaths or singly as the case demands. Red roses may be used either fresh or in paper for filling the vases.

The invitations may be in appropriate valentine fashion. It will be simpler to buy them and write the invitations on the backs. When the guests arrive have two baskets of broken but matching paper hearts.

The man and his date sit at opposite baskets. When they enter the room arranged for the dancing a lot of fun is caused by searching for the halves of lost hearts.

Novelties are always welcome. The hostess should have at least one new feature in the way of a dance to offer. It is an easy matter to have a rehearsal for three or four couples ahead of time and it will not be difficult for others to pick up the steps by watching them. In selecting the music it is always good to introduce as many new and popular airs as possible. If records supply the dance music, this can be easily managed. One person should attend the machine throughout the period of dancing, so that things will be sure to move smoothly. If there is a small orchestra, or the music is suggested to them the music you wish played.

February is the month for costume parties. The heart party may be a paper party with paper dresses. Girls who are clever can make paper costumes as well as caps and aprons for the men, dominoes and other fancy costumes.

Again, the old-fashioned sheet and pillowcase idea is a lot of fun, especially if the sheets are drawn, then sheet artfully and make them look like sculpture. This party may be called a "sculpture" party. The pillowcases are apt to be so warm that it is a good idea to use white paper muslin for the headdress instead.

The buffet table is best for a party numbering more than twenty-four. It is nice to have a heart-shaped top fitted to the table by the local carpenter, then cover it with white crepe paper with an eighteen-inch fall or flounce around the edge. Finish the edge of the table with a closely caught vine, from which a fringe of little red hearts may be draped. In the center place a big red paper rose or heart-shaped jack horner pie filled with appropriate favors. Use red-bordered plates if possible. Paper napkins and paper punch cups, but china cups if coffee is served.

Red bonbons, red frosted heart-shaped cakes, red frozen heart-shaped individual ice-cream forms or vanilla cream decorated with red cherries are suitable. Garnish the other foods to carry out the color scheme as nearly as possible. There are heart-decorated paper napkins, but it is safer to use plain white, for it is possible the red may come off when wet and menace party gowns. Large white paper napkins, hemstitched or fancy bordered, will be pretty and protective.

What to serve is always a bit of a problem when all the things must be made in the home kitchen. For home service a variety of sandwiches and coffee may be served, followed by cream and cake. This is the simplest offering. Or bread and butter sandwiches with chicken and Waldorf salad with coffee, then cream and cake may be preferred. Chicken, croquettes and peas are suitable also with tiny rolls and coffee, then a frozen pudding and a mixture of heart-shaped cakes. Fruit punch should be served all the evening for the dancers.

Water causes vegetable substances, like wood, beans and peas, to soften and swell. Unless the foreign body is very lightly placed, so that it will wash out at once, water should not be used. Instead, you may use what I call the "agglutinate method" of removal.

Dip a camel's hair brush, or cotton string, in "new-skin," collodion or glue. Apply this sticky thing to the glass head or other offending substance and penetrate to dry and adhere to it. Then by gentle pulling the foreign body can be removed.

"No indeed," I protested. "I'm quite ready to hear, and a bright walk homeward will do me more good than tea."

We fell into a quick stride. "I was to meet one of the girls for tea," Pam explained. "And when I met her at the hotel, she had this very attractive young thing with her."

"And what did the young thing have on?" I asked.

"Well, when she slipped her coat back, I fairly exclaimed in surprise. I was so pleased with her dress," Pam confided.

"Tell me more," I said.

"I told her it was the most attractive thing I'd seen in ages," Pam admitted.

"You haven't said a word about the dress," I reminded her gently.

"It was black moire," she said at last.

"I know how you adore moire," I answered.

"You would have adored this too," she assured me. "It had an apron in the back, and the most unusual fastening at the front."

"Sounds all right," I admitted grudgingly.

"The apron was fastened across the waistline at the back with tiny, brilliant buttons," Pam explained.

"It was longer than the skirt of the

YOUR HEALTH

Never Use Force Removing Foreign Body from the Ear

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,

United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

CHILDREN are given to using the nose and ear as places in which to hide all sorts of things. Beans, peas, pebbles, cherry stones, shot, buttons, pieces of wood and lots of other objects, find their way to these cavities.

Without human assistance such accidents could never happen. But there are unwelcome visitors which gain admission to the ear canal without cooperation of the victim.

Nothing is more disagreeable than the symptoms produced by an insect in the ear. Every movement gives rise to noises which are almost intolerable.

If the insect succeeds in crawling down to the drum membrane, so that it actually has contact with that delicate structure, the symptoms are violent and almost maddening. Not only is there loud noise, but there may be severe pains, headaches, vomiting and even convulsions.

I have discovered in the ear and removed bedbugs, fleas, beetles, spiders, cockroaches, flies, mosquitoes and gnats. Sometimes there will be two or three varieties of insect in the same ear.

Nature has provided a means of guarding against the entrance of, or, at least, the continued welfare of the insect. There is a sticky, highly odorous substance in the outer part of the canal which entangles the feet and wings of the visitor. This is one of the chief uses of the ear-wax.

In advanced life and in early life, too, for an occasional person, there may be an entire absence of ear-wax. Then the insect has a better chance.

Sometimes it is very small, microscopic indeed. In spite of its tiny size the insect may be an aggressive beast and raise a lot of trouble.

Occasionally we see a child suffering from chronic discharge from the ear. If this condition is neglected the ear canal may become a very offensive region. Cases have been recorded of the hatching out in such cases of the larvae of blue-bottle flies.

The maggots cause pain and great misery.

Insects are quickly killed by instillation of oil or glycerine. Sweet oil, sewing machine oil, olive oil, corn oil, or any other kind of oil will do the work. Then the ear should be syringed out with quantities of warm water.

Another way to kill the insect is by the vapor of chloroform. Place in the bowl of a pipe a piece of cotton saturated with the drug. With the mouth over the bowl, force the vapor through the pipe stem to the ear of the victim.

The best way to irrigate the ear is to employ the fountain syringe. In using the syringe great care must be exercised to avoid undue force. By keeping the bag low there will be a steady flow of water without the danger which comes from a powerful stream.

Too great force will be followed by dizziness and even complete loss of consciousness in a faint.

Water causes vegetable substances, like wood, beans and peas, to soften and swell. Unless the foreign body is very lightly placed, so that it will wash out at once, water should not be used. Instead, you may use what I call the "agglutinate method" of removal.

Dip a camel's hair brush, or cotton string, in "new-skin," collodion or glue. Apply this sticky thing to the glass head or other offending substance and penetrate to dry and adhere to it. Then by gentle pulling the foreign body can be removed.

M. S. Q.—Is it advisable to take baking soda for heartburn?

A.—It is not advisable to take the drug you mention too often. You are probably suffering from hyperacidity. If you will kindly send a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I will be glad to send you full particulars on the treatment of this trouble.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper questions on medical, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Where the subject of a letter is such that it cannot be published in this column, Dr. Copeland will, when the question is a proper one, write you personally if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. Address ALL INQUIRIES to Dr. R. S. Copeland, in care of this office.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Chats About a Frock with Individuality.

"I SAW a girl with the most adorable frock at tea today," Pam gurgled. "I had worked late at the shop and was feeling a bit fagged."

"Well, if I had had tea and cinnamon, I might feel more enthusiastic about clothes," I replied grouchily.

"You poor dear!" Pam exclaimed in her warm-hearted way. "I was ashamed of myself immediately. I was feeling a bit weary of clothes because I had to stay late to model an evening gown for an enthusiastic musical comedy star," I explained.

"Let's go into this little shop and I'll talk while you have tea," Pam offered.

"No indeed," I protested. "I'm quite ready to hear, and a bright walk homeward will do me more good than tea."

We fell into a quick stride. "I was to meet one of the girls for tea," Pam explained. "And when I met her at the hotel, she had this very attractive young thing with her."

"And what did the young thing have on?" I asked.

"Well, when she slipped her coat back, I fairly exclaimed in surprise. I was so pleased with her dress," Pam confided.

"Tell me more," I said.

"I told her it was the most attractive thing I'd seen in ages," Pam admitted.

"You haven't said a word about the dress," I reminded her gently.

"It was black moire," she said at last.

"I know how you adore moire," I answered.

"You would have adored this too," she assured me. "It had an apron in the back, and the most unusual fastening at the front."

"Sounds all right," I admitted grudgingly.

"The apron was fastened across the waistline at the back with tiny, brilliant buttons," Pam explained.

"It was longer than the skirt of the

An Apron Is Placed Uniquely to Decorate This Black Moire Frock.

frock and it was lined in cerise."

"Stunning!" I exclaimed. "I forgot to say the frock was piped in cerise," Pam added.

"What about the way it was fastened?" I asked.

"Oh, yes," said Pam. "You know those ducky little upstanding collars one sometimes sees on Chinese mandarin coats?"

"I know," I answered.

"This had one of those, also lined in cerise, which buttoned at the center-front," Pam said. "From here the dress fastened over at the side just like a mandarin coat."

"Very clever," I agreed.

"She had designed it herself, as well as a black moire hat to match," Pam finished triumphantly.

Tomorrow's

HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 1.

Peculiar and perplexing conditions are read by the astrologers from this day's stellar operations. Neptune and Uranus, the eccentric and intriguing planets, being dominant forces. Under the Lunar tinge to Neptune, new projects may be taken under advisement, especially as they relate to large corporations or to secret societies. It may be a favorable time for diplomatic relations. All manner of occult or mystical avocations should thrive. Under the Uranian figure, there may be danger from unconventional or eccentric social affiliations or engagements.

Those whose birthday it is may have an interesting and successful year if they shun eccentric or peculiar entanglements and confine their dealings to established corporations or diplomatic organizations. A child born on this day may lean toward the metaphysical, making its best success outside ordinary channels. It will be very popular.

VISITOR FINDS NO VIRTUE
IN MANY STORIED BUILDINGS

LONDON—Raymond, Unwin, expert on city planning to the British health ministry, finds much to condemn in American skyscrapers during a recent tour of the United States.

"Piling more buildings on top of what you have, and boring more subways or erecting more elevated tracks to pour their additional multitudes into the already swollen torrents in streets, looks like sheer madness to a town planner," Mr. Unwin says. "With every additional story the effective floor area is reduced by the space demands of elevators, and every story tends to darken the rooms below. The number of dark rooms in New York in which artificial light must be used, is far greater than in London."

The day population of London is 614 to the acre, according to Mr. Unwin, and that of the loop area of Chicago 2,830 to the acre.

SAN FRANCISCO'S FIRST
SUBWAY IS FOR VEHICLES

SAN FRANCISCO—To save seconds for a daily army of 170,000 commuters, as well as to speed up street cars, and vehicular traffic at the great Ferry building, San Francisco is building its first subway.

The subway is for vehicles only. It will be 900 feet long, 23 feet in width and will cost $340,000. The north and south vehicular travel now counts from 600 to 1,000 automobiles and teams an hour. In one rush hour of traffic during the evening more than 390 street cars swing around the Ferry loop.

East Prussia To Enact Laws
To Protect Amber Industry

KOENIGSBERG—New laws are being formulated that will give East Prussia complete control of the amber output within its borders. The laws, designed to protect the amber industry, will deny to tourists the privileges they have enjoyed for many years hunting for amber along the Baltic beaches. All nearby countries bordering on the Baltic sea have laws protecting the amber industry.

The East Prussian amber output last year from beaches and mines operated by the government amounted to 800,000 pounds.

Athens News

Judge James E. Horton, Sr. was buried from the residence on South Clinton street at three o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The funeral services were conducted by Dr. T. R. Husk pastor of the local Presbyterian church of which Judge Horton was a member. He was assisted in the service by Dr. R. T. Tyled. The services at the cemetery were conducted most inspiring by a large group of Masons of the Athens Lodge. The going of a great man like Judge Horton leaves an example for every young man of the land. He has lived a spotless life among the people of his community and every praise is given him by the people of his home. Judge Horton, Jr., said after the burial of his father: "His life was complete. He lived it gloriously. His life stands out before me as the greatest incentive to right and righteousness that has ever come before me."

Mrs. Elizabeth Irwin died Tuesday evening at her home on South East street. She would have been ninety-two years of age had she lived till the 15th day of March of this year. Many years ago the last immediate relative of hers passed away and she has largely lived alone for years. She was a member of the local Baptist church and before her feeble days of failing strength, she was devoted to the worship and work of the church. Funeral services to be held Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock from the home, Dr. J. O. Williams, pastor of the First Baptist church, conducting the services. The body will be buried in the Athens cemetery.

Athens Kiwanis club held their regular luncheon in the club house on Houston street on Tuesday evening at six o'clock. A most delightful program was rendered by Mrs. Nolen of Athens College and Miss Lambert of the department of expression of Athens college. One new member was given welcome to the fellowship of the club, Mr. Robert M. Rawls, editor of The Alabama Courier and postmaster of Athens.

Rub It On For Deep Chest Colds

ABSORBED like a liniment and at the same time INHALED as a vapor, Vicks gets immediately into congested, inflamed air passages

NEVER NEGLECT A CHEST COLD.
If allowed to "hang on" it means lung tissue weakened, air passages predisposed
to infection. There is then danger of pneumonia and pneumonia is now more deadly than tuberculosis.

When a cold goes down deep, with soreness,
tight breathing and a heavy, hollow cough, apply
hot wet towels over throat and chest to open
the pores of the skin.

Massage briskly with Vicks for five minutes,
then spread on thickly and cover with two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths. Leave the bed-clothing loose about the neck so that the vapors arising may be freely inhaled. These vapors, inhaled with each breath, carry the medication
directly to the affected parts.

At the same time, the penetrative and stimu-
lative effect of Vicks through the skin increases
the circulation of the blood throughout the chest region, and thus helps to relieve the tightness and congestion.

VICKS IS A BOON TO MOTHERS
because it is an "outside" treatment. There is no dosing to upset a child's delicate stomach.
You just rub it on.

Vicks is a combination in salve form of the old, time-tested remedies for colds—Camphor,
Menthol, Eucalyptus and other volatile oils.
Being externally applied, it can be used as freely
and as often as desired, even on the youngest child, with perfect safety.

When the kiddies come in wet and "sniffing"
Vicks is applied to prevent colds. An application at bedtime will usually prevent a night
attack of croup.

Just as good, of course, for the cold troubles of adults—sore throat, tonsillitis, head and chest
colds, bronchitis, coughs.

Made at first in the back room of a little drug store in North Carolina, Vicks has so consistently demonstrated its worth that now it is more widely used than any other remedy of its kind.

How Vicks Should Be Used

For Spasmodic Croup, Children's Colds—Rub Vicks over the throat and chest until the difficult breathing is relieved, then spread on thickly and cover with a hot flannel cloth. One application at bedtime usually prevents a night
attack of croup.

For Head Colds, Asthma, Catarrh, Hay Fever—Vicks should be melted in a spoon and the vapors inhaled, or a little can be applied up the nostrils and snuffed well back up the head.

For Deep Chest Colds, Sore Throat, Tonsil-
litis, Bronchitis, Coughs—Rub Vicks briskly
over the throat and chest. In severe cases first redden the skin to open the pores (see directions). Then spread on thickly and cover with one or two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths.
Leave the bedclothes loose about the neck so that the vapors may be freely inhaled. If the cough is annoying, a small piece the size of a pea can be swallowed every two or three hours.

INDIAN VALUED THE BUFFALO

That Animal Supplied the Red Man With Almost Everything That He Needed.

Gen. Richard Irving Dodge, United States army, in his work on the big game of America, says: "It is almost impossible for a civilized being to realize the value to the plains Indian of the buffalo. It furnished him with equipment—almost everything," reports the Detroit News.

"Every plains Indian firmly believed that the buffalo were produced in countless numbers in a country under ground; that every spring the surplus swarmed like bees from a hive, out of the immense cave-like opening in the region of the great Llano Estacado, or Staked Plain of Texas.

"In 1879 Stone Chief, a celebrated chief, assured me that he knew exactly where the caves were, though he had never seen them; that the 'Good God' had provided this means for the constant supply of food for the Indian; however recklessly the white man might slaughter, they could never exterminate them. When I last saw him the old man was beginning to waver in this belief, and feared that the 'Bad God' had shut the entrances and that his tribe must starve."

HIS TESTIMONIAL TO HOTEL

August Holiday Seeker Writes in Guest Book How His Stay Impressed Him.

In previous years Smith had always taken his holidays in May, but this year he decided to make a change and go away in August. As you can guess, even if you are not a habitual August holiday maker, the charges at the hotel were very high in comparison with what he was in the habit of paying in May, and the bill gave him rather a shock.

"I hope you have enjoyed your holiday here, sir," said the landlord on the day on which he was due to return home. "I hope you will write something in our visitors' book."

"What shall I write?" inquired Smith, rather at a loss.

"Oh, anything," said the landlord. "Your impression of your short stay here, for instance."

After a few minutes' thought Smith took up the pen and wrote:

"I came here for change and rest. The waiter took the change and the landlord got the rest."—Chicago News.

King of Rome. The title king of Rome was bestowed at the time of his birth upon Napoleon Francois Charles Joseph, son of Napoleon I and Marie Louise.

After the fall of Napoleon in 1814, the king of Rome was taken in charge by his grandfather, the emperor of Austria, and carefully educated as an Austrian prince. His title was changed to that of the duke of Reichstadt in 1818. He died at Schoenbrunn, near Vienna, July 22, 1832, in his twenty-second year. It is thought that this title was given in imitation of Charlemagne. If so, it was a blunder; Charlemagne was never "king of Rome," but he was "patron of Rome." In the German empire the heir-apparent was "king of the Romans," not "king of Rome." This latter title was expressly conferred on the German kings, and sometimes on their heirs, by a coronation at Milan. The German title equivalent to "dauphin," or "prince of Wales," was king of the Romans.—Reader's Handbook (Brewer).

EASILY PREPARED PASTRY AND WHEAT GOODIES

Many tempting buns and cakes, easy to eat, easy to make, healthy, inexpensive, and different can all be made from the same sponge with but slight changes. These goodies by whatever name they may be called are suitable for breakfast, lunch, dinner, dessert, or for the kiddies who want a bite between meals.

RECIPE FOR THE SPONGE

1 cup Spring patent flour
2 cakes compressed yeast
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon sugar

Method: Crumble the yeast into the bowl. Gradually add the milk which has been scalded and cooled to tepid or lukewarm and the sugar. Beat in the flour. Cover and let stand until light, about thirty minutes.

The making of this sponge is the first step in each of the four recipes given here. In each case the method calls for the materials in the following recipe for the dough.

Recipe for the Dough
3 cups Spring patent flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter
7 tablespoons sugar

In making the recipe given here be sure to note the slight changes from the amounts listed for the dough and the sponge.

SAVARENS
Method: In making the sponge for the Savarens use 1/2 cup flour instead of 1 cup. When sponge is light, from the recipe for the dough, add 1 1/4 cups flour. (Only 2 cups of flour are used in making Savarens.) Next add the melted butter and the eggs unbeaten, adding one at a time, beating well after each egg is added. Next add the salt and 1/2 cup of chopped almonds. Beat 10 minutes. Pour into small, well buttered molds. Cover and set aside to rise for about 45 minutes. Bake 45 minutes in moderate oven (350° F.). These resemble Cream Puffs and can be served in

MONKEY KISSED ITS MOTHER ROMANCE IN A DAY'S EVENTS

Writer Tells of Human-Like Scene of Simian Affection in Burma Forest.

In Burma we had a monkey tribe that were called locally human; gray-black-faced tree dwellers, says W. A. Fraser in the Saturday Evening Post. The males, as they looked down at one, the black face surrounded by white whiskers, always were a puzzled, plaintive look.

They were lengthy of limb, long of tail and light-bodied, built expressly for their mode of travel, which consisted in racing to the top of a tree and shooting out in a flying leap downward to the limb of another—the tail, as it did the trick automatically, twisting about the limb with a grip quite strong enough to suspend the monkey's body.

In these flying leaps and in the race up the tree, the monkey tribe always lay flat, stung under the mother, its paws grasping the mother's fur.

Once, standing quietly on a jungle path, I saw a female of this tribe sitting on a limb with her back toward me. Behind her on the limb a baby monkey about a quarter grown was skyarking, pinching his mother and trying to tie a knot in her tail. Suddenly I saw him stand up, put his front paws under the mother's chin, pull her head over backward and kiss her. The mother, her heart full of affection, I fancy, was delighted, for her head went over willingly and she rubbed the baby's cheek with her own.

TRAGEDY OF AGED BUFFALO

Abandoned, Clings to Water Hole in Pitiable Solitude Until He Perishes.

"The buffalo bull that has outlived his usefulness is one of the most pitiable objects in the whole range of natural history," says Col. Henry Inman in his "The Old Santa Fe Trail," published in 1897, according to the Detroit News. "Abandoned to his fate, he may be discovered, in his dreary isolation, near some stream or lake, where it does not tax him too severely to find good grass. In this new stage of his existence he seems to have completely lost his courage. Frightened at the rustling of a leaf, he is the very incarnation of nervousness and suspicion. Solitude, foreign to his whole nature, has changed him into a new creature."

"Nobody ever saw one of these miserable or forlorn creatures dying a natural death or ever heard of such an occurrence. The cowardly coyote and the gray wolf had already marked him for their own; and they rarely missed their calculations."

Forest Estimates. It is estimated that if the forests of the earth were completely stocked and scientifically worked they would yield annually the full equivalent of from 80 to 120 times the present consumption of coal.

Paisley Shawls. Paisley shawls are copies of Persian or Indian shawls. The oriental shawls are made, however, of Asiatic wool or camel's hair, while the Paisley shawls are made of the fine native wool of Scotland.

ENGLISH BATH BUNS

To the sponge add the following ingredients from the dough recipe: The butter melted, the eggs unbeaten, the flour, 4 tablespoons of the sugar and salt. Beat thoroughly. This mixture should be stiff, but not firm enough to handle. Cover and let rise in a warm place 1 1/2 hours. Sprinkle the rest of the sugar, 4 tablespoons, and 1 cup of chopped almonds over the top of the dough. Mix very lightly. Drop in well-greased muffin pans. Cover and let rise until light—about 1/2 hour. Bake in moderately hot oven (400° F.) for 25 minutes.

the same way; that is, fill the center with whipped cream and serve with Chocolate Sauce or the following Orange Sauce. Roll to a syrup—about 3 minutes, 1 cup sugar and 1/2 cup water. Flavor with orange juice.

BRIOCHE
Method: Make the sponge as directed. Sift the flour with the sugar in the amounts given in the dough recipe. Add the butter softened, using an additional 1/4 cup of butter for this richer dough. Then add the eggs beaten until light and the salt. Beat and mix thoroughly. Add the sponge. Mix thoroughly. Add 4 more eggs beaten until light. Cover. Let rise again about 4 hours. Beat again. Chill in the refrigerator over night. In the morning shape by rolling under the hand into a long strip about 27 inches long and 1/2 inch thick. Bring ends together and twist like a rope. Form into ring. Small rings may be formed by cutting the long roll into strips. Place on well buttered pan to rise.

BABA CAKES
Method: Follow the general directions given for Brioche up to the point of chilling the dough. Then add 1 cup seedless raisins, 1/2 cup currants, 1/2 cup citron, 1/2 cup candied cherries, and 1/2 cup nuts. Instead of chilling in refrigerator over night, place in well greased pan, preferably Angel Food type of pan, allow to rise until double in bulk. (This rising will be slow or that for plain yeast breads.) Bake in moderately hot oven (400° F.) for about 30 minutes.

From Domestic Science Dept., Washburn Crosby Company, Minneapolis, Minn.

When Double in size glaze with white of egg diluted with water. Bake in moderately hot oven (400° F.) for 25 minutes. Ice while hot with Confectioners' Sugar moistened with water. Spread with almonds.

Note: This Brioche being a richer recipe calls for an additional 1/4 cup butter and 4 eggs.

Berlin, Doubting Its Blind Men. Begins Testing Suspicious Ones. BERLIN—Blind men have become so numerous in the streets that the public has begun to doubt their affliction and is putting them to a test. One "blind man" recently was mobbed in the west end of the city. The man was labelled with signs saying he was "entirely blind as the result of war wounds."

He had collected marks with great success for many days before a doubting contributor suddenly snatched into the man's ear that he was not blind and the man started after his accuser with a cane, wild-eyed and alert. Police intervened and the impostor escaped into a cigar store where he treated himself to an expensive cigar. But the indignant public pursued him, dragged him from the shop and gave him a sound beating while the policemen looked on.

The Alamo. The Alamo, San Antonio, Tex., was originally a Franciscan mission house, built in 1742, and called San Antonio de Valero. The building was used as a fort on occasions and called Fort Alamo.

Thing to Avoid. Avoid, if possible, incurring an obligation which you have reason to believe you will never have it in your power to repay.

Tattooing Name on Wrist. Tattooing the owner's name on the wrist is said to have supplemented the wrist watch as a fad among English girls.

Insects Have Compound Eyes. All insects have a pair of compound eyes, although simple eyes may be present also. The compound eyes project on each side of the head as convex, immovable structures. There is only one pair, although each eye may be partially divided. The compound eye consists of a great many similar parts—each a complete organ of vision, but requiring the surrounding elements to form the whole image. Each of the many elements of the eye makes a small image, so that the whole is a mosaic of separate contributions, which combine in a unified visual impression conveyed to the brain. Flies have several thousands of these eyes.

Force of Habit. A friend calling on De Soaque asked for a glass of water. As the guest drank it the host stood eyeing him with a speculative gleam.

The guest, somewhat embarrassed, asked the reason for his behavior. De Soaque apologized immediately. "Force of habit," he explained. "I was waiting to see if it was going to kill you."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

NOT ALWAYS WELL MANAGED

MORGANTOWN. Declaring that the teachers in the rural schools of this county in some cases are "not playing the game with 100 per cent efficiency," Superintendent Lynn Hastings has sent a letter to all of them urging a more conscientious attitude toward their work.

The faults cited by the superintendent include the following: not punctual in opening school, close too early in the afternoon; neglect classes during the day; croquet, read or write letters during school hours, permit children while on the school grounds to use obscene language and otherwise misconduct themselves; fail to solve difficult problems in upper grade arithmetic; do not prepare their lessons properly and have to consult text books on many questions during the recitation period; too disinterested to attend teachers' meetings; teachers and janitors do not build fires early enough in the morning to insure comfort when school convenes; fail to take interest in community in which they are teaching and speak disparagingly of it; do not obey the law requiring a flag to fly over all school buildings while school is in session.

Dane To Sell Coin Collection

LONDON.—The world famous coin collection of the Danish merchant, M. Bruuns, is to be broken up and offered for sale. The English and Irish collection which contain many coins manufactured by the Danish Vikings in England have been acquired for the Royal Coin and Medal collection.

The other sections, it is understood will be offered for sale at public auction.

Films Aid German Farmer

KOENIGSBERG.—Young pigs, handled scientifically, can be made to take on weight at the rate of two pounds a day, according to government experts.

A film showing how this is done, as well as illustrating the best methods of feeding stock and poultry, has been shown this winter to the farmers of east Prussia.

Bulgarian Women Make Demands

SOFIA.—The women of Bulgaria have asked parliament for general suffrage, complete equality with men before the law, and the right to practice before the courts.

The premier is in favor of their voting for school boards and in municipal elections, but the minister of the interior is inclined to give the women all they seek.

The women are determined to take a more active part in the political life of the country.

It is never too late with us, so long as we are still aware of our faults and bear them impatiently—so long as noble propensities, greedy of conquest, stir within us.—Jacobi.

New York Letter

by Lucy Jeannie Price

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Horses may be disappearing from our streets but they are holding their own in the value put upon them. One million dollars worth of them arrived here on the liner Mississippi, in the form of 94 thorough breeds imported for racing, hunting and breeding purposes. Among them was Royal Canopy, recently purchased by an American for $125,000.

The theory held by a good many people in New York's northern counties that most of the people in this Metropolitan district are slightly insane, especially those of much money is confirmed in the opinion of Thendara, an industrious village in the Adirondacks. Westchester county sport enthusiasts decided to have an exhibition of ski-jumping. They secured an expert ski-jumper from Montreal and the American Olympic ski team from the northwest. They built a noble slide. Everything was in readiness except the snow. And nowhere in Westchester county could one find of that be found. Chauncey Depey Steele and Henry E. Tinsley, undaunted sportsmen refused to be defeated by the elements. They took six freight cars to Thendara and paralyzed the community by paying $1 an hour for snow shovellers to transfer a couple of Thendara's drifts to the freight train. It was a bit melting and sooty when it reached Briarcliffe Lodge, but the skis did get over it somehow.

A George M. Cohan show is one thing, a Cohan show with George M. himself in its leading role is another. In fact, there isn't anything quite comparable to it. We are rejoicing in having such an opportunity again on Broadway. In "The Song and Dance Man", we have the inimitable George in one of the best shows he has put on in several seasons and the result is all that could be asked by anyone who believes that at least one mission of the theater is to provide cheer and amusement.

W. J. Sids, the one-time Harvard prodigy, whose faded glory was lamented in this column the other day, is still a prodigy. It seems that he is managing to save money on the $23 a week paid him for running the adding machine which is his present responsibility in life.

Charles Dillingham, who has just returned from a scouting trip abroad, declares that he waited until landing here to see the funniest incident of his whole journey. On the pier he noticed a custom official examining a man's trunk and being told that its contents were lingerie belonging to his wife. An official rudely opened the trunk, fished out a flash holding its due share of Scotch and roared at the passenger, "Lingerie, eh? What's this?" "What," replied the man, "is a nightcap."

She was bound to come, of course, the woman truck driver. It's amazing that she has been so long delayed. Annie Rakewer may not be the first woman to chauff a big motor truck, but she is the first on record because she was the first to get herself arrested. She left her license and badge at home and it was difficult for the traffic policeman to believe that she really had them. When they were produced, she was let off with a $2 fine for having forgotten to keep them with her and with a compliment from

Not everyone expects a lady explorer to wear hob-nailed shoes and mannish clothes and to have a weather-beaten, although estimable, face. Therefore it has been a blow to look upon Rosita Forbes, the English writer and the world's most traveled woman, who has just landed here, after penetrating the Sahara desert, the jungles of India, the hills of Morocco, and goodness knows what else. Mrs. Forbes is a slender, lovely person who might easily be described by the time-honored phrase, "essentially feminine." She wears smart, becoming frocks, and whatever the newspapers may say, I know it was her smile that got her past more dangers than any ability to shoot straight. But she is scared nearly to death of New York taxis.

What the Press Agents Say

First Step in Treatment Is Calomel Tablets, the Purified and Refined Calomel Tablets That Are Nauseless, Safe and Sure.

Doctors have found by experience that no medicine for colds, coughs, sore throat, and influenza can be depended upon for full effectiveness until the liver is made thoroughly active. That is why the first step in the treatment is the nausealess calomel tablets called Calotabs, which are free from the sickening and weakening effects of the old style calomel. Doctors also point out the fact that an active liver may go a long way towards preventing influenza and colds and is one of the most important factors in enabling the patient to successfully withstand an attack and ward off pneumonia.

One or two Calotabs at bed time, with a swallow of water—that's all interference with your eating. No salts, no nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, slight pleasure or work. Next morning your cold has vanished, your liver is active, your system is purified, and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Genuine Calotabs are sold only in original sealed packages, price thirty-five cents for the large family-package; ten cents for the small, vest-pocket size. (Advt.)

Milton Sills, Anna Q. Nilsson, Frank Campeau and Walter Long are the principal members of the cast of "The Isle of Lost Ships," a First National attraction produced by M. C. Levee and personally directed by Maurice Tourneur which will be the feature at the Princess theater Friday and Saturday. It is based on Crittenden Marriot's famous drama of the sea. The remainder of the cast likewise leaves nothing to be desired.

Milton Sills, as the escaped convict—facing death in the electric chair—who saves the life of the beautiful young society girl when the vessel on which he is being taken back to the United States, is rammed by a derelict, gives his story strong characterization.

Miss Nilsson, as the heroine who finds herself compelled to marry within twenty-four hours, has a strenuous role which she enacts with skill and finesse.

CLEVELAND TO ALTER HALL FOR REPUBLICAN GATHERING

CLEVELAND—Bids will be requested soon by the Cleveland convention executive committee for the work to be done in the public hall basement to meet the requirements of the republican national convention here next June.

Blueprints received by the convention committee's executive body from General Coleman Du Pont, chairman of the national committee's arrangement committee, show what changes are to be made in the basement of the hall to meet the convention needs.

There is to be one large room where the national committee will hold its sessions and hear contests for delegate seats.

Another room will be provided for meetings of sub-committees. There are to be offices for the national chairman, the secretary of the national committee and the sergeant-at-arms.

There will be a lounge in the basement, also a convention post office, restaurant, a telephone room, quarters for the press associations, four Cleveland newspapers and telegraph offices.

Plans for the work to be done in the main auditorium of the building in which the convention sessions will be held have not yet been received from the national committee.

Dead Sea Fruit.

The apple of Sodom is the familiar name of a species of yellow fruit which grows on the borders of the Dead sea. It is extremely beautiful to the eye, but bitter to the taste and full of small black grains, not unlike ashes. This apple is often referred to as the "Dead sea fruit," and the expression used as a metaphor for hollow, unsatisfactory pleasures.

GENERAL BOOTH SEES EVIL IN DOLE TO UNEMPLOYED

LONDON—In a report of the social work of the Salvation Army, General Booth refers to the effects of the "dole" on the unemployed.

"I am led sometimes," he says, "to wonder whether what is called the dole—the indiscriminate distribution of money for which no labor is required in return—is not almost, if not quite, as great a misfortune as unemployment."

Speaking of the moral decline, the mischievous influence over all alike, which springs from the evil of this thing, he added: "For once at least we see how a remedy may be far worse than a disease. The steady receipt of money for which no equivalent in work is rendered, makes against everything that is good in the receiver's life. The innate ill of idleness are increased. That which is more or less a maternal misfortune is turned into a moral disaster. I do not hesitate to say that tens of thousands of people in these islands have learned, or are learning at this very time, to live without work and for the young people especially, this is a most disastrous experience."

MODERN FOOTWEAR OUSTS OLD STYLE SHOES OF SATIN

PEKING—The encroachment of western civilization has revolutionized the shoe-making industry in Peking, according to the Chinese Economic Bulletin. When official shoes made of satin were in vogue among the well-to-do and the poorer classes wore shoes made out of cotton cloth, the business was prosperous; but now the oldstyle shoes have been discarded for foreign style leather shoes which are imported, or made by another class of artisans from Shanghai or other self.

treaty ports. For this reason Peking shoe makers are engaged almost entirely in making cheap footwear for the poorer classes.

Another industry affected is baking. Owing to a liking for foreign-style pastries, the business of Chinese bakeries is falling off. Bread is being used more and more. A few years ago, it is said, there were in Peking more than 400 bakeries turning out Chinese food, whereas today there are only 127.

Medicine shops, although showing a decreased turnover, are less seriously affected because of the enormous profit to which the business lends itself.

Going To Dine Out?

A Personal Word From J. R. Glass

Have you ever in your travels found a restaurant where the owner or manager by his personal interest in your comfort and welfare made your meals conspicuously pleasant?

If so you are looking forward to dining there again and that is just the atmosphere that now pervades the Lyons Restaurant.

My crew from chef to the bus-boy are trained to make the smallest detail a series of pleasant experiences by their courteous, unobtrusive interest. The Lyons restaurant and cuisine are reputed to be unsurpassed, if equaled.

But aside from this if there is any detail great or small in which I can help during your meal let me know and I shall never be too busy to establish with you the interest of a host with his guests rather than a manager with his patrons.
